Imports fell 30.8% in first 8 months

August posts 14th consecutive month of declining shipments

By Dennis M. Ramirez

Imports fell 30.8 percent in the first eight months of this year, according to the Bureau of Customs, as the government continued to impose strict controls on foreign goods.

The decline was the 14th consecutive month of falling shipments, a record for the bureau. The total value of imports for the period was P1.2 billion, down from P1.7 billion in the same period last year.

The most significant drop was in the automotive sector, where imports fell by 45 percent. This was due to a combination of factors, including a shortage of spare parts and a decline in new vehicle registrations.

Other sectors that saw a decline include electronics, machinery, and chemicals. However, there was a slight increase in the import of agricultural products, which rose by 10 percent.

The government has attributed the decline to a variety of factors, including a weak economy, a shortage of foreign exchange, and a decline in consumer spending. It has also noted that the strict controls on imports have helped to reduce the trade deficit.

Oil import bill falls by 51%

By Amy S. Smith

Tokyo, Oct. 25 (JEN)—Japan's oil import bill for the first nine months of this year fell by 51 percent from the same period last year, according to the Ministry of International Trade and Commerce (MITI).

The bill for the first nine months of this year was 1.1 trillion yen (about $9.5 billion), compared with 2.2 trillion yen for the same period last year.

The decline was due to a combination of factors, including a drop in oil prices and a shift in Japan's oil import mix.

MITI officials said that the decline in oil prices was the primary factor, with the price of oil falling by about 30 percent from last year.

They also noted that Japan's oil import mix shifted toward lighter crudes, which are less expensive than heavier crudes.

The decline in the oil import bill is a significant achievement for Japan, which is heavily dependent on oil imports for its energy needs.

RP banks keep down bad debts

By Amy S. Smith

Tokyo, Oct. 25 (JEN)—The five major banks in Japan have kept their bad debt ratios low, according to a report by the Japan Bankers Association (JBA).

The JBA report shows that the bad debt ratio for the five major banks was 0.1 percent for the first nine months of this year, compared with 0.2 percent for the same period last year.

The JBA said that the low bad debt ratio was due to the banks' strict lending standards and their active efforts to collect on loans.

The five major banks are the Industrial Bank of Japan, the Sanwa Bank, the Tokai-Mitsubishi Bank, the Dai-Ichi Kangyo Bank, and the Industrial Bank of Japan.
